ARRESTED FOR EMBEZZLEMENT

Alex Calder Raturns Disgraced to His ment. Canadian Home-Accused of Embezzling $800 From His Employer.

Alex Calder, a Canadian lumberman, was arrested Sesterday afternoon by Detectives Smith and Date, on a charge of embessioment, preferred by one John McMillan of Slytne, Ontano. Calder, who is a resident of Blythe, was formerly foreman and general manager of McMillan's business, and great confidence was placed in his honesty and altity by his employer. A anort time sgo, however, Calder sold a car load of lumber for $219.80 and is alleged to have appr priated the money. His weltedness was discovered and a warrant was produced, but before it could be served Calder had jumped the country and left for Michigan, where, it is presumed, he hoped to escape detection.

Meanwhile his accounts had carefulbeen gone over and it was found that by his peculiar methods of busi-noss he had enriched himself over $800 murth at the firms expense. Detective Allen of London, Out, was immediatet this city when he finally located his The police authorates were informed and nelped Allen out, as he had no authority to make the arrest.

Calder who is between fifty and sixty years of age and has always borne agood enutation in Biythe, was taken back to Contarn last might where he will have to answer to the Canadian authorities for his peculations,

CHRISTMAS AT ST. MARK'S.

The Pleasant Celebration Held There Last Evening.

A hospital isn't necessarily a humorous place; but folks at S. Mark's had more fun than anybody last night. Christmas was celebrated in the merriest kind of a way. Thirty-eight of the forty patients in the institution were present. The exercises were held in the children's ward on the first floor. in the children's ward on the first floor. The room was prettily decorated with pictures, evergreen and holly. The Christmas tree was prettily lighted with incandescent lamps, and the branch were weighted with presents for the murses and patients. In addition to the gifts on the trees, two long tables were filled with bundles and packages. The decorations were furnished by Mrs. Jerome Smith's circle of King's Daughters', the little members of which made nearly all the preparations for the celebration also.

The exercises were opened by the singing of Christmas carols by the nurses. Dr. Fair offered the invocation and then made a few remarks.

tion and then made a few remarks. In the midst of his speech, a "real, live Santa Claus," emerged from the chimney and saluted the guests. Dr. Fair recognized the hale old gentleman and introduced him to the guests. The presents were then distributed There was a stocking well filled with presents for each patient, besides hosts of personal gifts from triends. The nurses were remembered by the King's Daughter's who gave each a stocking full of gifts. The staff of the hospital presented them with a set of Dicken's works, an International dictionary, an etching and a carpet for the library of gave the nurses a copy of Gray's anatomy, and Miss Preusser presented each with a very pretty pin. Miss Kober, superintendent of the training school received a pretty Dresden china tray, and a toilet set from the nurses. Numerous other presents were also re-ceived at the hospital. Mr. W. O. Hugnart sent a box of Florida oranges, and other benevolent citizens remembered the institution. The incandescent lights for the tree were loaned and arranged by the Peninsular company.
